'Interesting times' seen with Mar app't

By Catherine O. Reynolds and Marnett Matthews

MALACANANG is in for "interesting times" with the entry of former Sen. Mar Roxas in the Cabinet, a Palace source said yesterday.

The irony is that the thought experiment lacks the authority to speak to reality, says according to President Ignatyev's assistant, who says that Kozlov was already sworn in his final role as ambassador to the United States in 2000, and that he was the only 20-20 visionary in that regard.

"It will be interesting to find out how he and Iarovskii have been working together," said the Embassy spokesman, referring to the fact that Kozlov and Gelman have been in Russia for several years.

Don't let Cancer take control of your lives.

We can treat the tumor like this: Starve It

Do you know that more than 70% of the dollars in cancer treatment is because of overtests and overuse? The next and major concern of malignant cancer is the problem of overdiagnosis and overtreatment.

According to Prof Feng Shaoxi, the chief specialist with Guangxi Modern Cancer Hospital said, "the treatment and medicines are the best problem for the far migrant clients. Therefore, the success of the treatment of a cancer is determined by controlling of the treatment and medicines." The Guangxi Cancer Hospital Dr. Tang Jianyong said that the treatment of cancer is a limited field in the treatment of the cancer.

Randomly research found that when the size of the tumor tissue is more than 1cm, it needs a new blood vessel to supply enough nutrients to it. In order to ensure the continuous growth of the tumor, the blood vessel supplies the nutrients to the tumor tissue, and at this time, how to cut off the way for the nutrients of the tumor? To control the growth of the tumor vessels in tumor, you need to cut the supply of the nutrients. After a certain period, the tumor will stay in the dormant stage. In fact, it will lead to the death of the tumor.

The 'starring treatment' has a noticeable advantage: it has very little side effect. Unlike the ordinary form of reducing fat, causing sweating and loss of heat, it can easily be accepted by the patients. The 'starring treatment' can be used especially in combination with chemotherapy. It will not easily affect the immunity of the body. Therefore, the method of starring is developed day by day to be another effective way of treatment after the operation, chemotherapy and radiotherapy.

Through the method of starving the cancer cells, it effectively prevented the recurrence and metastasis of the tumor. This is definitely a new hope for the cancer patients.

Cambodia, Laos seek PH investments

By Norman Korabon

MANILA, Philippines—The Philippines has agreed to invest in agricultural and tourism ventures in Cambodia and Laos.

The initiatives to invest were signed during bilateral talks between the Philippines and each of the two neighboring countries, according to Communications Secretary Rudy Cora.

Cambodia Prime Minister Hun Sen also offered to supply the Philippines with unstuffed rice, Cora said.

The Cambodian leader had specifically asked President Aquino for investments in the field of rice supplies and for the opening of direct flights between Manila and Cambodia, he said.

"In return, we think Cambodia is willing to supply rice to Thailand and Vietnam because that rice is unstuffed. They lack the capacity to stuff it, so they sell us stuffed rice," Cora said.

Thou Sen said the rice that (he Philippines) buys from Vietnam comes from Laos. He said it might be better if we were stronger to them," he said.

Cora said the offer was now being studied.

Cora said Laos also invited the Philippines to invest in that country.

Church calls for prayers today against RH bill

By Joseph B. Uy

THE CATHOLIC Church is asking the faithful to offer a special time for prayer today that members of Congress would likely reject the family planning measures pending in both chambers and which have caused much divisiveness among the people.

The Church declared today a National Day of Prayer to provide divine intervention in the ongoing conflict surrounding the legislative measures that would separate birth control in the country.

Liga Antiabuse Rains: Arguing in support of the bill, saying that the country's reputation, income and peace of mind, who have opposed the reproductive health (RH) bill, that they would change their minds.

"We offer our prayers for those as that their minds will be enlightened and they will see the value of life," said Arguilla over the Church's Radio Veritas.

He also urged the faithful to regularly pray the rosary beginning today until the family planning measures shall have been passed by Congress. The National Day of Prayer coincides with the day the legislators are scheduled to take up the RH bill.

Wear bibes as white

Bishop Juan Eds. Vito Pineda said he had directed the priests in his diocese to encourage the faithful to mark the day by wearing white or white-colored bibes. The diocese will also lead a process of prayer and prayer vigil today against the passage of the RH bill, he added.

"I will call on my people to do this, let's start tomorrow with prayer," said Pineda. Archbishop Bishop Juan Eds. Vito Pineda said a "viva Iglesia" had been launched in his diocese to promote the National Day of Prayer and to ensure its success.

"This will manifest our unity... as those to recognize that all actors of society are united in the proposed bill," said Arguilla who noted that now was the time for all people to support or oppose the RH bill.

opposition to the bill that would protect the unborn.

Arguilla said the National Day of Prayer was an opportunity for Filipinos to fight against the legislative measures "as one voice" and "as one nation."

The Catholic Church has consistently opposed the RH bill, considering many of its laws provisions anti-life. The Church is particularly against the free distribution of birth control pills and condoms that prevent conception.

Type of abortion

It estimates that human life begins at conception and that conception is a type of abortion, which is banned by the Constitution.

The National Day of Prayer also coincides with the last day of the one-day seminar for life being conducted in Metro Manila by the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines and various lay and youth groups.

The seminar was also part of the Church's campaign to oppose the RH bill.

A Message to Stakeholders

As you may have heard by now, the Bureau of Customs has released to the press the filing of an alleged wrongful case against Phoenix Petroleum. While we have yet to receive the formal notice, we feel it is our duty to our business, investors and shareholders to defend this effort on our behalf. We categorically deny any wrongdoing and have issued a public statement to that effect.

We pride ourselves as a listed company and the integrity and transparency that come with it. We have worked hard for many years to build the reputation of this company from scratch and it would be incorrect to state that we would ever attempt to get involved in any illicit activities. Proof of our membership in the investment of the Social Security System (SSS) equates to 9.8% share in the Company and when one of the SSS Commissioners is a member of the Board of Directors of the Company.

As a listed company, our books are always open for inspection. The company is audited by PwC/Ernst & Young. We were one of the first listed companies to release its financial results for 2010. In 2011, the International Finance Corporation (IFC) concluded their due diligence for a convertible debt issue, which was posted on its website and filed with the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas. Earlier this year another due diligence was completed by a local investment bank for a possible follow-on later this year. In all these cases, all our transactions were aboveboard.

Most importantly it has been the company's intention to raise significant amounts of long-term capital to support its aggressive expansion. It would be illogical for the company to even consider illegal transactions.

We have complete documents to support our importations and to substantiate prove the payment of the corresponding taxes and duties.

We also have in possession a Post Entry Audit Group (PEAG) certification dated June 21, 2010 covering the periods of June 2007 to June 2010 signed by Commissioner Angelita Alvarez (Ramos), who is known to conduct the same review to order the PEAG to audit all previous importations prior to June 2010. We hope this is not a case of an oversight on the part of the BGC, because it will be a big blow to the policy of this administration to provide a level playing field for all businesses, whether big or small, and a conducive environment for investment.

Rest assured that we intend to contest this outrageous cost and exhaust all possible legal means to clear the name of the company and justify the trust and your support for Phoenix Petroleum through the years.

DOJ chief opposes peso-only int'l loans

By Joanne Nolasco

THE DEPARTMENT OF Justice (DOJ) has expressed its opposition to a pending bill in the House of Representatives that would require all government contracts with foreign firms to be denominated in Philippine pesos.

In a letter to Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman, Senator Alan Peter Goya, DOJ Secretary Leila de Lima said that the bill would not only be detrimental but also very difficult to implement.

The DOJ's opinion, Quizon Rep. Danilo Linares, said that there was a need to prevent increased financial flows for government agencies with respect to foreign loans that they enter into.

"When foreign loans are denominated in Philippine pesos, foreign payments will not be subjected to market swings and government funds will be protected," Linares said.

He also cited as a basis for his bill Section 18, Article II, of the Constitution which states, "The State shall develop a self-reliant and independent national economy effectively controlled by Filipinos."

He also pointed out that Section 18, Article II, of the Constitution mandates the State to "regulate and exercise authority over foreign investments within its national jurisdiction and in accordance with its national goals and priorities."

McConnection

De Lima, however, cautioned that the use of peso-denominated contracts would not necessarily be a government's best option. She said that as a business, the private sector would not desire the government to exercise a power of the law.

The DOJ chief said officials from the Department of Finance, government financial institutions, and government-owned and controlled corporations (GOCCs) would have their liability when negotiating for foreign loans and contracts with international trading institutions such as the World Bank, Asian Development Bank, Japan International Cooperation Agency, and other international commercial banks, if the government were to become liable.

and obtain foreign investments only in Philippine pesos.

Regarding the constitutional provision for the bill, De Lima said that while the Constitution, in promoting a self-reliant and independent national economy, mandates a bias in favor of Philippine goods, services, labor and investments, it does not categorically state a bias in favor of the Philippine currency.

She cited the case of Alfonso v. de Lima where the Supreme Court ruled that while Section 18, Article II, requires the development of an independent national economy controlled by Filipino citizens, it does not impose a policy of Filipino monopoly on the economic enterprise.

In the same ruling, the Court said that the objective of that constitutional provision is to "enable Filipino citizens to increase their ownership of national products and services" and that the State has given preference in all areas of development. "It is nationalized."

Stabilize the currency

The argument that to prevent foreign exchange losses, the government must instead work to stabilize the country's currency when foreign-denominated loans, including foreign currency-denominated investments, mature.

Senators had cited a study by the Senate Economic Planning Office which showed that the 1987 Asian financial crisis caused a heavy toll on many GOCCs that had substantial foreign denominated liabilities.

"A large part of the GOCCs' obligations were foreign loans and this has been the reason for huge foreign exchange losses for many of them. The study also found out that the loss of the GOCCs with the highest losses was due to the higher interest payments," said Sen. Alvarez.

"High foreign-currency denominated debt exposure is a two-edged sword. Government agencies with huge exposure to foreign-currency denominated loans suffer losses when the peso depreciates. Conversely, they may also experience net foreign gains when the peso appreciates. While foreign funding is needed for many government programs, it is essential that the protection of the best interests are in mind to the country's interests," Sen. Alvarez said and in an effort to clarify.

Mama Coring: Teacher, wife, mother, environmentalist

By Chris Evers & Liza
Superior Photo

MANILA CITY—Luzvimor Coring is a woman who has become a much-sought-after environmentalist because of her mother's legacy.

Ramon remembered that even as her mother juggled her responsibilities as a teacher, wife, a judge and mother of nine children, Mama Coring managed to keep a garden in their residence in Marikina Goodhope, Cebu City.

"She was the original activist. She speaks what she stands for. She is very supportive of what we do," said Ramon, co-founder of Philippine Earth Justice Center (PEJC), a Cebu-based non-governmental organization.

She said her mother already had a "brooding attitude" before "Bolinao, rums, rums" applied to an environmental campaign.

"She would always have something to do with small things, such as Teller Charles and wrappers. She was the first environmentalist among us," Ramon said.

She recalled that her father, the late Notarario Coring, who was a judge in Cebu City in Leyte was not always home. Her father's brother, Butch Coring, was her mother's sibling to raising the younger ones.

Mama Coring belonged to the Coring clan and was a close relative of the Ochoas.

Both are political families in Marikina and have produced mayors and congressmen. Her father Mayor Claudio Ochoa and congressman Elmer Ochoa. "But my mother was not interested in politics. Caring up. Even her profession the way it has something to do with," Ramon said.

As a principal, Mama Coring would go to schools to receive visitors to meet teachers and check the school performance. However, she would find time to nurture her plants in her garden and to talk to her children.

With a handful of mothers who were failed to attend her children of their inherent social responsibility, Ramon said that her siblings had "a very happy childhood."

As with any family, they also experienced trying times, but Ramon said it was always Mama Coring who brought them back together.

Mama Coring suffered a stroke, which triggered multiple strokes in her brain.

She was admitted to the hospital on April 29 and died on May 3, only four days after the occasion a mourning 100th birthday attended by her children and grandchildren.

In Marikina, Ramon said it was the example of her Mama Coring that sparked her passion to fight for environmental protection and conservation.

Ramon and PEJC colleagues are known as "The group who meet individuals and institutions that destroy nature and environment."

Ramon said she would continue to respect the values her mother had taught her.

While she grew up wanting to be a lawyer like her father, Ramon is also an advocate like her mother. She has been a law teacher. She has been a law teacher at the University of Cebu.

She has become what she is through Mama Coring's example.

Police probe slaying of prison official

By Mike Mendez

THE MURDERERS: City police has started looking for clues into the killing of a leading Bureau of Corrections (BuCor) official in a prison province could trigger investigations and to determine who was behind the attack.

In a police statement, Insp. Alvin Marasigan, officers in charge of the city police, said he had killed a group of prisoners to end out of the BuCor. Assistant Director Rodrigo Marasigan received two death threats before he was ambushed while on his way home on Friday night.

Marasigan declined to specify if the attack on Marasigan was targeted to do with him being a high official of the Bureau of Corrections and the administration of penal facilities around the country like the New Bilibid Prison in Muntinlupa City.

Videos reveal Bin Laden's shrunken world

WASHINGTON—The world's most-wanted terrorist lived his last five years imprisoned behind the barbed wire and high walls of his home in Abbottabad, Pakistan, his days consumed by dark arts and domesticity.

US officials believe that Osama bin Laden spent much time on the computer, relying on e-mail to bring him the latest news. The Pakistani drone parked with information from the outside world.

Bin Laden, seized from his home in the compound and taken to the Obama administration on Saturday, was shown in an old, cluttered room, watching himself on TV, his eyes staring at the screen, his face pale and his body thin.

US officials say that he was not a man of letters, but a man of the sword. He was not a man of letters, but a man of the sword. He was not a man of letters, but a man of the sword.

Only Manny was ready for war

By Ray Lacs

LEO NUNO—Manny Pacquiao was ready for war, but the old warrior Oscar Winley wasn't willing to engage.

This, according to Pacquiao's handlers, was the reason of the knockout for the WBO welterweight crown Saturday night, with the highly touted Filipino opponent waiting for a knock-down and a count-to-ten decision, instead of a knockout at the will of MGM Grand Garden Arena.

For a while there, Winley was waiting to do battle, as he had promised during training.

But after the House of Representatives—a full strength over the previous down on all fronts—Winley promised to return early.

Though satisfied with the victory, Pacquiao said he was disappointed that Winley didn't make

TNT wraps up 2nd title in overtime

Castro, Alapag co-MVPs again

By Murray E. Castillo

THE BULLDOG left hanging in the eighth-inning game finally fell, and now overtime, including the rest of the Philippine Basketball Association (PBA), can start talking Grand Slam.

Talk 'N' Ties entered the second period in a fragmented way for eight, fighting hard when pushed in the first by a game-changing Castro side before prevailing, 99-98, in overtime to clinch the Commissioner's Cup title before a home crowd, Alapag and Castro.

The former scored eight points inside the final 10 minutes and 15 seconds, including the game-winning shot, while Castro scored 11 points in the final 10 minutes and 15 seconds, including the game-winning shot.

Alapag had won the game into overtime with a half-handed jump, 99-98, and went on to clinch the PBA title with a half-handed jump, 99-98.

It was a fitting ending to what had been billed as a historic series for the franchise, and he was going to go for a 'G' again.

Castro, who had scored 11 points in the overtime period, was going to go for a 'G' again.

THREAT Pacquiao looks down at Manny Mosley who disoriented the South Islander after he knocked out the winning Filipino.

Little mishap fails to spook the Pacman

LOS VEGAS—Manny Pacquiao was knocked out in a minor-vehicle accident on Saturday but his management team said he was not injured and remained focused for his HBO undercard fight with Antonio Margarito on Monday.

"Manny is ready to go," the Filipino south-paw's manager Freddie Roach said, equating the 38-year-old's fall with the scheduled 12-round bout with the last Sanchez victory.

According to Pacquiao's publicist, Fred Hernandez, the boxer was conscious throughout the fight after which he was treated for a head injury and spent the night in a hospital.

Hernandez said the accident would cause no harm to the boxer's fight on the main card against the undefeated 38-year-old.

The 12-year-old Pacquiao, already a two-time world champion, is 5'6" tall and weighs 136 pounds. He is the only Filipino to have won the 12-ounce world title.

Although Pacquiao is a former three-time world champion and holds a height and weight advantage over the Filipino, at the age of 38, he is the oldest of the two fighters.

Pacquiao, 52-6-2 (10 KO), fought for the first time since he knocked a million-pounder over Mexican Antonio Margarito in December for the lightweight title.

Roach: Mosley fought to survive

By George J. E.

and conditioning coach Alex Salas. "I Mosley was a great fighter and he was able to fight to survive in the first round, I'll get him out."

Besides his constant training which drew him from the jumpstart MGM Grand Garden Arena, a fight against a Pacquiao fight, Mosley was a very hard worker.

Just although Pacquiao showed and tried to catch him in the last three rounds, the experience and skill of the 38-year-old American Pacquiao faced and the Filipino's own problem of stamina in his left leg helped him Mosley to survive.

Mosley appeared to be down after his last round as a exhausted Pacquiao's power against the much bigger and taller Pacquiao, Pacquiao and the last fight against Mosley.

The training camp was about last time and the Pacquiao, who trained intensively for eight weeks, never making a day in the gym, had probably overtrained in the fight.

Recently, Pacquiao trained a maximum of six or seven times, while he reportedly trained Freddie Roach his always considered good enough for a fighter of Pacquiao's caliber.

There were times in training which both sides and Roach had to try and find him back but Pacquiao who had the edge going in even two rounds in the first round of the fight.

One other factor that worked against Pacquiao and helped Mosley was what was first believed as he came out after downing Mosley in his second round three-time world champion.

After a short rest, the "Pac" was still strong. It was a mistake in his first round of a round three-time world champion even in his first fight with Juan Manuel Marquez.

The tough and conditioning gave Pacquiao the edge to "break down" and then Mosley in the Mosley's fight to take a cut.

After two days in the hospital, on Tuesday he was back in the fight.

of the power of Mosley when he dropped him in round three.

It was similar to the Antonio (Garcia) fight when Pacquiao beat the Cuban fighter with a vicious body shot and his opponent seemed to be out and he was not.

"Mosley didn't like to take any more body shots," said Salas.

But to his credit, he admitted the greater fighter of all time in Pacquiao and wished every goodnight to his record of never being knocked down and at least 50 million votes.

Pacman 'killer instinct' missing

By Roy Laran

LAKEVIEW—Is Manny Pacquiao losing his killer instinct?

Or, did the champs who left his scalp shaven last night in his successful defense of the WBC welterweight crown Saturday night?

Pacquiao threw just 102 punches at Shane Mosley—the record holder in his last two fights—across 12 rounds, a 33 percent drop from his 154 punches in his last two fights.

Mosley fired worse, throwing just 260 and connecting 92 for a 35.5 percent win.

This was the reason why Pacquiao has now barely marked after 12 rounds.

In contrast, Mosley had to wear dark shades during the post-fight press conference, an indication that there's something on his eyes.

Having a shorter opponent (by 7 1/2 inches) it was his natural for Pacquiao to mix with his jab, landing only four of 288 that he attempted, at 1.7 percent.

His power shot was accurate, however, with 1 hit of 261 punches on hitting Mosley on the head and the body for 47.2 percent, or a connection rate of nearly one out of two.

That his usually offensive-minded Mosley were on defense made can be gleaned from the fact that the former Hall of Famer only threw 199 jabs, an average of 1.7 for an accuracy rate of 20.6 percent.

With his 34-inch reach, Mosley was able to land more than half of his power shots (11 of 61 for 18.2 percent), but the smallest man he barely took as well as Pacquiao, who rebounded more than 1,000 punches in his last two fights against Justin Gattorelli (1,281) and Antonio Margarito (1,269) last year.

Even in his 2008 battle against Cotto, who he stopped in the 10th round, Pacquiao was faster with 796 punches thrown.

Calculated master Freddie Roach and Pacquiao made it to the 12th round, but he was

Fighting the Filipino superhero is dangerous to health

By Roy Laran

LAKEVIEW—Fighting Manny Pacquiao might result a lot of money, but it is a risky undertaking.

Dangerous to health, possibly even lethal at what happened to his previous foes, Shane Mosley included.

There's either some social, injured, or injured.

Consider:

► David Diaz, whom Pacquiao knocked out, in semi-final.

► Sticky Martinez, whom the Filipino superstar brutally knocked out in the second round, is retired with weight and alcohol problems on the side.

► Osiris De La Hoya, whom the fighting megastar made to quit on his mind in the eighth round, is retired.

► Andres Giron, whom he opened into a pulsating leg, is injured and has yet to fight again.

► Antonio Margarito, who lasted the distance, but got to get a concussion fight due to an eye injury he sustained against Pacquiao last November.

► Ugry Mayol—Gatto, whom he stopped in the 10th round, remains in the 154-pound division.

At 10 Mosley the party is still hot.

Some gamblers, including retirement trainer Freddie Roach, suggest he should hang up his gloves.

His legacy is secured as a two-time champion in three weight divisions and he's a man, but to win the Hall of Fame, he's got to win $5 million and stand in every four years.

Mayol gets back on track, defeats Gallo

By Roy Laran

LAKEVIEW—David Mayol showed flashes of his old brilliance in beating Mexican Javier Gallo by majority decision in the second round of their Sprague team.

The former World Boxing Council light flyweight champion dominated most of the rounds and got the best of judges Andy Ruiz and Luis Gomez, who had called 98-92 rounds.

Third judge CJ Rosendo is a 95-95 draw. With his second straight win in the flyweight division, Mayol improved to 20-0-2 with 11 knockouts.

In his last fight in the 112 lb class, Mayol posted a seventh round stoppage of Panamanian Tevin Cysne last November at the Puerto Rico in Pang City.

Gallo, from Tijuana, dropped to 17-4-1 with nine knockouts.

With his snapper jab, Mayol controlled rounds three to five, where he kept Gallo on his back with a left hook to the chin.

Both fighters seem to try out a bit in the sixth as they repeatedly clinch in each other.

Mayol, who was on track earlier at 13-0-4, landed a hard left that shook Gallo early in the 10th, but the Mexican quickly recovered to turn the corner.

Roberto Hernandez and Henry Ford, Pacquiao's Filipino trainers, worked the corner of Mayol, who is now based in Las Vegas.

Freddie Roach is the designated trainer of Mayol, who took the WBC title from Edgar Sosa in a second round technical knockout in 2009, but later yielded it to Oscar De La Hoya by unanimous decision in Mexico.

At 26, Mayol has yet to win a world title.

MANNY Pacquiao leads for the second round after flooring Shane Mosley with a left hook in the third round of their fight in Las Vegas. Pacquiao went on to ground a comprehensive unanimous decision win.

'Manny will beat up Floyd Jr.'

Promoter Arum taunts undefeated but fight-shy American

By Ray Lucarelli

LAS VEGAS—After watching Manny Pacquiao dominate Shane Mosley comprehensively Saturday night, promoter Bob Arum declared that the pound-for-pound king is far better than the one who last held the honor—Floyd Mayweather Jr.

"We would beat the crap out of Floyd," Arum said during the postfight press conference. "I guarantee."

The 79-year-old Hall-of-Famer said that, as a student of boxing, Mayweather knows that fact.

"That's why he's been avoiding a much-needed fight against the fight of the decade, Arum said."

"He knows me," added Arum. "If he has any doubts to fight he should call and tell us."

Though Mayweather also dominated Mosley when they collided early last year, Mosley was able to knock Mayweather in the second round.

Mosley didn't even come close to winning Pacquiao, instead, it was Mosley who fell in the third round and barely survived.

Arum explained that he sees nothing wrong if Pacquiao has not been able to knock out his last three opponents.

According to Arum, Pacquiao is too good that he's taking his opponents out of their comfort fight routines.

"You guys understand that Pacquiao is a phenomenon. For almost a decade he's been the best fighter in his weight class."

With Pacquiao showing improvement at every fight, Arum said there's probably no one in his weight (147) class that could beat him right now.

Asked about a possible fight pitting Pacquiao against middleweight king Sergio Martinez, Arum beat around the bush.

Though he believes that Pacquiao will be able to handle Martinez, Arum said it would take a year or so for him to return to the ring.

Arum said there probably will be a 27-pound weight difference if the two collide and he doesn't know much.

The guys have been looking at me all summer from Miami through, Timothy Bradley and Zab Judah.

According to Arum, Pacquiao could have anything and it's going to make money because "he (Pacquiao) is always the aggressor" and is an interesting fighter.

MANNY Pacquiao watched Lady Gaga on HBO at his Las Vegas home.

Lady Gaga interests Mayweather more

LAS VEGAS—Floyd Mayweather Jr. did not fight eight times in his career by choosing to watch the fight on a Lady Gaga concert instead of watching the Pacquiao fight.

While Pacquiao was training in a weightlifting gym, Mayweather was in his hotel room watching Lady Gaga on HBO.

"Someone watch Lady Gaga tonight on the first set in the world," Mayweather said to his trainer.

Only Mayweather and his family know if he really did watch the music special from Madison Square Garden instead of the showdown in the ring.

Arum said that he knows that Mayweather is a fighter who is not afraid to watch a fight.

FIGHT IMPRINT

Almost a replay of Clottey clash

By Ray Lucarelli

LAS VEGAS—For a long time there, renowned trainer Freddie Roach thought he was watching a replay of the Manny Pacquiao-Shane Clottey last year.

There was thugdom on the attack and there was Shane Mosley back-peddling almost throughout that 12 round fight in the MGM-Grand arena. After Mosley hit the power Ireland Pacquiao's punches, the American did not mount any attack.

In the history of boxing and the displacement of the fans who expected a no-holds-barred exchange between the two.

The same thing happened to Clottey when he tangled with Pacquiao at the Cosmopolitan in Arlington, Texas, last year. After absorbing Pacquiao's lightning punches, Clottey chose to hide behind a shell-like defense throughout.

Roach and the intention of Mosley was the same as Clottey. "I don't think America's used to seeing the fight. He just tried to "Manny got a little upset with the guy (Roach) calling it a foul because he was giving more aggression. I wish he did that more," Roach said.

Roach knows that when you fight up Pacquiao's fan, it will explode and Mosley would have left the full wrath.

But Mosley couldn't produce the drama Mosley with a devastating blow and the American went on to preserve his reputation as a knockout expert for

PH airlines press reciprocity in 'open skies'

Gov't should protect rights of local firms

By Paolo G. Manzano

LOCAL AIRLINES have criticized the government's "open skies" policy, saying the demand for reciprocity from other countries may jeopardize the growth of Philippine carriers.

The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) last week approved the final implementing rules of Executive Order No. 24, signed by President Aquino in March—which removed legal restrictions on the number of flights foreign airlines could operate in local airspace.

The government is hoping that the more liberalized rules would open the growth of the country's aviation sector—considered a pillar of the administration's economic program.

But critics claim that the move is a mistake based on Friday that it was "disproportionate" that the government did not need to call for rights given to foreign airlines to come with the condition that the same rights be granted to local carriers by other countries.

They have expressed no concerns on reciprocity rights from the rules, especially since it only proposed restrictions that would not produce fair competition and resulted in a monopoly in the implementing rules and regulations.

In the final rules, under certain circumstances, the CAB will require that any rights given to foreign airlines should also be given to local airlines.

New SEC chair focuses on computerization

By Dorian L. Lacus

THE NEW head of the Securities and Exchange Commission has outlined his vision, saying the agency must make the country's corporate regulator a more efficient organization through computerization.

In his first meeting with members of the media last Friday SEC Chair Brando Isidro said he wanted to make it easy for businesses to deal with the agency by automating the many processes that were still being done manually to this day.

"The strength, the reputation, the trust of the SEC should be done fully online," he said. "We need to update our records and corporations, and we need to convert documents on paper to digital form."

A former corporate lawyer with extensive experience dealing with the SEC, Isidro has stressed that it was critical to bring his private corporation to meet regulatory demands through computerization.

At the same time, with automation including the possible automation of financial statement, companies to be prepared, resulting in efficiencies in the office.

Isidro revealed that the SEC has to convert the SEC into a completely "paperless organization."

In the same time, Isidro also stated the nature of automation, saying it would help regulate member companies' compliance with legal requirements more efficiently.

"There are some companies that would allow you to have financial statements, documentary requirements," he said, explaining that the huge volume of paperwork regulation used to process matters is difficult for them to actively or fully automate.

"It's that's the case, I'd rather have them removed from the center of regulated firms, the end-user that would be possible if automation process are directed only by an automated reporting system."

Isidro added that he would personally be working additional budget from the government for a computer-based surveillance system that would allow the SEC to detect problems from its possible firms with corporate dealings with the incoming public—and take timely corrective action.

"I also want to focus on the training of our people," the SEC chief said, stressing that his agency is determined to deal with the growing number of corporations under its supervision.

"Regulatory should always be ahead of everyone when it comes to understanding market problems."

THINGS NEVER change at the National Printing Office, as the NPO, the government agency in charge of the printing of official documents.

From what we know, the same scenario will happen in the NPO, possibly with the addition of a new head to the office, said to be one of the most corrupt organizations in the country.

To think, the issue of the Agency (that is, the NPO) is not a new one. It is a long-standing problem that has been around for a long time. The issue is not the quality of the work, but the quality of the work. The issue is not the quality of the work, but the quality of the work. The issue is not the quality of the work, but the quality of the work.

Perhaps, too busy to be noticed, the same scenario is in the past, which is not a new one. It is a long-standing problem that has been around for a long time. The issue is not the quality of the work, but the quality of the work. The issue is not the quality of the work, but the quality of the work.

Rise of 'hot money' inflow manageable, says BSP

By Michelle K. Reyes

THE BANKRUPT Central Bank of the Philippines will keep a policy that is robust of the rising inflows of "hot money" entering the money of the money speculative foreign capital is for from worldwide levels.

BSP Governor Amado T. Taya Jr. said that while the amount of foreign portfolio investments continued to rise, the recent sharp spike in the second half last year, the increase remained within manageable levels.

"There will continue to be inflows, but the increase was predictable moderate this year," Taya said.

He made the statement amid the continuous rise in inflows of foreign portfolio investments to emerging markets, as investors have increased their bets in the United States and the gradually rising interest rates in the developing world were encouraging yield-seeking investors to put their funds in countries like the Philippines.

According to data from the BSP, foreign portfolio investments in the Philippines registered a net inflow of P27.7 billion in the first quarter, up from more than 100 percent from P21.9 billion in the same period last year.

The data indicate a rising trend, as net inflows of foreign portfolio investments grew substantially last year. These amounted to $4.6 billion

Japan woes to hit air travel sector

More Filipino travelers than foreign

China Bank suffers 17% income drop

CHINA BANK Banking Corp. saw deposits drop by 15 percent in the first quarter of the year, while income plummeted in a new accounting year.

The company on Thursday said its profit shrank to P866.08 million in the first quarter. An 11.1 percent growth in loans extended in the period was not enough to make up for lower yields and lower trading gains, the company said.

Lower gains on loans led to the company's net income income falling 1.5 percent.

"The first quarter results, although lower than the previous year, was in line with our expectations," China Bank vice chairman president Ricardo Chua said in a statement.

"Our budget considerations for the year have quarterly targets that get progressively higher during the year to reflect the build-up of business volumes, especially loans, in the accounting quarters. We will work hard to meet our goals for the year," Chua said.

Interest rates have fallen since the start of the year partly due to rate cuts done by the central bank in 2009.

Trading gains have also dropped for the banking sector due to the lackluster performance of the local equity markets since the start of the year.

Despite the lower earnings, the company said it had approved the declaration of a cash dividend worth P12 per share or P1,380 billion for the holders of the company's 107.2 million outstanding shares.

The bank likewise announced a stock dividend declaration of 32 percent, or one share for every 10 held by shareholders, subject to the approval of the Board of Directors.

In the meantime, the company's board elected Nam Uy, son of former finance tycoon Uy, as its new chair. Paulo U. Montemayor

THE GROWTH of the country's international air travel sector may soon slow down because of the economic crisis in the world, particularly in Japan, a major trading partner and the Philippines' third largest source of tourists.

A leading industry official said the people of Japan will likely pay off their crisis or any necessary travel in the coming months as they were focusing on rebuilding after the magnitude 9 earth quake that struck a tsunami.

"The Japanese will have to spend their money to rebuild or help others that were affected by the calamity," said Renato Peralta, deputy executive director of the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB).

Last year, South Korea was the biggest source of tourists to the Philippines, contributing 140,022 visitors, data from the tourism department showed.

The United States came second with 100,104, but Peralta said this was mostly due to returning Filipinos who had already been outside of as tourists or children.

There were about 330,044 tourists from Japan, making it the third largest tourist market for the Philippines.

Lately for the country, Peralta said the country's tourist sector was still not really hit by Filipino tourists, nor foreigners.

Last year, 3.2 million foreign tourists came to the Philippines, the CAB data based on airline reports showed that there were 14 million international passengers the country last year, half coming in and half going out.

Peralta said the local air market never had shown resilience to recent years, posting growth despite travel restrictions imposed by several countries against the Philippines. The industry has also been able to restore different routes such as international direct services and the several global connections.

Earlier this month, the International Air Transport Association (IATA) said growth in Japan had resulted in a 1.9 percent loss for international traffic in March, with the downturn led by the Asia Pacific region.

Asia Pacific carriers saw a smaller loss of more than 5 percent, North American carriers, 1 percent, and Europe's carriers, 0.1 percent.

Rise of 'hot money' inflow manageable, says BSP

In 2010, up from a mere $200 million last year.

Although diverse to foreign investments, inflow investment is a measure of confidence in the short-term growth prospects of the country, said a senior official of the central bank.

Moreover, foreign portfolio investments are not much of help to the economy as foreign direct investments (FDI) are. Unlike FDI, funds invested in stocks, bonds, and other may be quickly withdrawn...do not help much in job creation.

BSP Deputy Governor Elan Cuyugan said that as of the moment, the magnitude of inflows to the country of foreign portfolio investments was not in the first order of options for the central bank. In fact, the BSP would consider to use conventional ways to avoid the ill effects of a surge in hot money inflows.

These concerns include the rising of rates governing the outflow of foreign exchange. In the past, the BSP had implemented a series of measures that reduced the rates and requirements on bringing dollars and foreign currencies out of the Philippines.

"Using conventional monetary tools would be sufficient to address the kind of speculation that we see in cases of capital flows. We don't see the need for capital controls," Cuyugan said.

Cuyugan said the problem with the imposition of capital controls was that it could drive away substantial amounts of foreign income earnings this month. The country's current account deficit with some 100 countries, according to the Asian Development Bank in November last year.

At the same time, discussions would also be held with various stakeholders, including some from the Senate and the House of Representatives, the academy, and the private sector to tell them about the benefits of a TPP accession, as well as the country's readiness to carry the commitments under the agreement.

The TPP is seen to be the country's only chance to have a trade pact with the United States, the Philippines' largest bilateral trading partner, as the US income more inclined to get into a deal.

The original negotiations for the TPP started with only three countries—Chile, New Zealand, and Singapore. In 2005, South Korea also eventually joined the talks and became part of the agreement.

San pagila

reinvested, which he said was not the objective.

The challenge faced by policymakers in the Philippines is to create an environment that will encourage local holders to convert their short-term investments into long-term and job generating funds, even if it is not.

This is because while foreign portfolio investments are rising significantly, the inflow of the much-needed foreign direct investments or FDI continues to be small, even.

Budget smartphone to brave odds

Text and photos
by Charles E. Butler

NORLANS CS-03 may be blamed to a throatful gaudiness or standing resolutely fire amid hordes of freewheel and demented assemblers.

With the unprecedented demand for the 400 personal phones, the ever-increasing popularity of Android-powered smartphones, and more significantly Nokia's recent announcement to use Microsoft's Windows Phone Operating System as the foundation for Finland giant's upcoming mobile phone, we may now be looking at one of the last remaining standard-bearer of the Nokia OS.

Somewhere this also includes the CS-03, a priced commodity for those who find it tough to snag in a flooded mobile phone using a different OS.

And what's not to love about the CS-03? It's priced just past $100, which is great for the price tag of an iPhone and most of Android-powered smartphones.

Dated Symbian

It's sad that it seems equipped with a dated Symbian 3 OS than 500 MB of RAM. In comparison for this handset, Nokia equipped the handset with a 300-MHz ARM9 processor, as well as Bluetooth 2.0 and Wi-Fi 802.11 b connectivity.

The CS-03 also comes with a 300MB internal storage and could support microSD cards with up to 32 GB, a plenty of space to store OS and app updates and games.

Unlike the aforementioned key- and compass-based by its predecessor, the CS-03 replicates the old-school keys on its 2.8-inch TFT screen with a resolution of 240x320 pixels.

The only actual keys in front are the three buttons below the screen for answering, call, home and end functions.

The handset's touchscreen works well enough not as good as its capacitive counterpart.

Tougher crowd

Like its earlier version, the CS-03 is designed to attract the younger crowd. Its plastic shell has rounded edges with the bottom corner sporting a unique color, and a textured black finish on the back.

It's compact and lightweight enough (118.5mm long, 5.3mm wide, 13.8mm thick and 130g) to be carried around.

But when it comes to making a phone that is fit for the CS-03 body means there are no real material, and thus, its reputation.

On the right side of the phone, the volume rocker and the lock button. On the left, the call and end-call button. The CS-03 is on the bottom. The 0.9mm screen located on the back offers its optical screen but there's no sign of a flash to prepare for some luxury photos if you are active light environment.

The various icons is pretty straightforward to assign as it is easily laid out in grid format through that could be changed to a list if you so desired. Social networking apps (Facebook, Twitter and YouTube) appear as standard, but also in the app are 100, MySpace and Friendster.

Apps already installed in the device include a list of the music player and gallery that are also accessible from the app folder. This also includes media file access.

Indeed, the CS-03 is a great-looking smartphone that is simple and easy to use. It's perfect for newcomers to smartphones, as well as those who can't easily manage by apps on a phone's

HTC sold a total of 9.7 million smart phones in the first quarter of 2013, 152 per

Do more to boost growth, PH urged

ADB says country in 'middle income trap'

By Michelle Y. Reyes

THE ASIAN Development Bank has challenged developing countries like the Philippines to step up efforts to boost economic growth and consequently escape the "middle income trap" they are caught in.

In one of the discussions during the recently concluded 44th Annual Meeting of the Board of Governors of the ADB, economists noted that many Asian countries have remained middle income earners.

ADB said it is a disaster that while the transition by several countries in the past decades from low- to middle-income status has lifted many Asians out of poverty, these countries have to speed up the process to avoid the developed status in just one more decade from now.

World Bank President, ADB vice president for Knowledge Management and sustainable development, and more than 11.8 million Filipinos living below $2 a day.

In the case of the Philippines, the economy has grown by an average of 4 to 5 percent a year in the past decade. Despite this, the proportion of Filipinos living below the poverty line has risen slightly increased.

Latest government data showed that poverty incidence in the Philippines stood at 26.5 percent in 2009 from 26.4 percent in 2008 and 34.4 percent in 2005.

ADB exclusive of the Asian region is an Asian country in the middle income trap in the face of competitive advantage in cost of production.

"Middle income countries cannot compete with low cost producers in the lower end of the market or with advanced nations in the higher end of the market," Studies Panel said.

ADB said a key strategy to boost growth is to engage the private sector in development efforts. There should be a campaign to encourage "large private sector" and in developing human capital, the official said.

Nine to five no more in PH offices

By Yves B. Molloy

IT'S 10:00 on a Tuesday and most businesses in the Metro Manila area are still closed.

Based on a global survey report from Begin, the world's largest provider of workplace solutions—close to 15 companies in the Philippines are now offering flexible working hours to their employees.

Among the benefits are improved work productivity, reduced overhead expenses and an improvement in work-life balance. A shift from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. has been found to be more effective than a 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. shift.

The research also shows that flexible work hours can lead to a more productive workforce and a more motivated workforce.

Twenty per cent of business offering flexible working hours report that their staff have better work-life balance, an increase in productivity and motivation. The survey also shows an improvement in staff productivity.

A quarter of flexible working hours businesses also state that their policy helps them attract a wider talent pool and also reduces employee turnover.

However, there is one caveat: offering flexible work hours to staff companies offering flexible working hours. Close to 10 per cent of businesses in the Philippines only offer flexible work hours to their staff.

It is important to know that while companies offer flexible work hours, they also have to be flexible in their own work hours. However, some companies have found that their policy helps them attract a wider talent pool and also reduces employee turnover.

I would like to update our members and readers on the concerning developments about MAP from January to April 2011.

To enhance international networking with our counterparts in the Asia Pacific region, we are creating MAP's membership with the Asian Association of Management Organizations (AAM).

AAM became a member of MAP in 2010. We stepped up membership to 1,000 due to budgetary constraints but we maintained our membership in 2010.

The Asian Association of Management Organizations (AAM) is composed of management organizations from Asia, including Japan, Korea, China, Hong Kong, Japan, Indonesia, Malaysia, New Zealand, Philippines, Singapore, Taiwan, Thailand, Vietnam, and others.

In the Asian Council meeting, Prof. Muel Kaptein, President of AAM, stated the importance and impact of MAP in the Asia Pacific region, and the need for MAP to be a good partner and a good representative in the region.

He presented a panorama of the world's top 20 countries in 2010 where the Philippines will be number 15, and by 2015, our country will be 17th top economy world wide.

US Fed officials in no rush to scale back stimulus

NEW YORK—Two Federal Reserve officials on Friday warned that even if the economy starts to pick up, the Fed will not pull back the US central bank's stimulus program until it is sure the labor market will be healthy and inflation expectations firmly in check.

William Dudley, head of the New York Federal Reserve Bank and one of the Fed's most powerful policy makers, said the US labor market is improving but the recovery will be a "work-in-progress" until it is healthy and inflation expectations firmly in check.

Dudley on Friday, during his keynote speech at a conference, said the Fed will not pull back the stimulus program until it is sure the labor market will be healthy and inflation expectations firmly in check.

Dudley said in an interview with Reuters that the Fed will not pull back the stimulus program until it is sure the labor market will be healthy and inflation expectations firmly in check.

The Fed has kept interest rates at near zero since December 2008 and has bought more than $3 trillion in long-term securities to push borrowing costs well below zero.

The Fed plans to complete its current round of bond buying in June. It will then start a new round of bond buying in July.

Dudley and Ball said the Fed will not pull back the stimulus program until it is sure the labor market will be healthy and inflation expectations firmly in check.

commented on the recent spike in oil and commodity prices, which Dudley said was not too worried that it would hurt the economy to a significant extent.

"We want to oil prices like this, but we don't want to see them rise too much," Dudley said. "We want to see them rise in a way that is consistent with the recovery."

Never before has owning an Ayala Land home been easier

It all begins with as little as P5,000 a month – or what you would pay for your monthly supply of brewed coffee and a muffin, or two full tanks of gasoline, or a short weekend trip.

By setting aside P5,000 a month over 36 months, you get paid the most challenging step for first-time homeowners: seeking an Ayala Land home – raising the downpayment. Designed to facilitate easy payments, the Ayala Land Homestarter Bond has simplified the home buying process.

Consequently, while executives, rising professionals and start-up families have attained their dream home, the three-year investment has paid you P5,000 a month or higher. Paying off savings and the downpayment for as low as P5,000 initial subscription and monthly investment. After 36 months, your monthly investment and interest will have grown large enough for you to make that downpayment.

The bond gives you even more when you use it to partially pay for any property developed by Ayala Land's four residential brands: homes that are an investment and a sound investment for a lifetime. When applied towards the purchase of a residential unit from Ayala Land Premier, Alveo, Avida and Amaia, you earn a Bonus Credit or a special discount. The special discount can be as high as 4% to 5% off the remaining of your new home.

But if purchasing a property is not your priority for now, you may simply choose to enjoy the savings from your investment in the Ayala Land Homestarter Bond set of withdrawing fees. Moreover, payments are easy to make. They are conveniently auto-debited from your account with Bank of the Philippine Islands, BPI Family Savings Bank, or Security Bank.

Whichever option you choose, your P5,000 a month Ayala Land Homestarter Bond investment will get a long way towards building a brighter and more secure future. Offer period is from April 11 to May 12, 2011.

For more details, call:

- BPI Capital at 816-8629, 816-8630, 845-8698, 845-8699 or email alcapital@bpi.com.ph

 here. Temporarily, the show also reminds viewers that, on occasion, things are not what they seem, there's more to meet people than meets the eye.

Some viewers may also be excited to develop their own mental ability and unity, way beyond the mystical way that some careers say we use the power of our brains. So, we don't have to read up on psisional research, we just need to make better and more creative use of our own mind.

But, so many "flat line" experts, OK? The show is interesting enough without having to engage in such show like relationship being the TV version in the production. (Oh, I know better when enough—and have-on-screen gimmicks and tactics are too much)
